

NEW TIME

The fraudulent female:

Believing you're a woman in a man's body is a way to scam other men and eliminate real women. That's why same-sex relationships are a fraud. The bodies don't match, and the sex itself is a fraud. Sex is human, so it cannot be scammed with objects. The fraudulent objective behind LGBTQ+ existence is to deceive heterosexuals into having sex with the same sex. The physical fraud is the body. The goal is to replace a real vaginal orifice with a fraudulent anal one. That makes the sex fraudulent, prevents births, and ends human life because no one can be born from that, because it is a fraud.

The fraudulent male:

Believing you're a man in a woman's body is used to trick another woman and erase real men. That's why same-sex relationships are sexual fraud. They make no sense, and the sex is fraud. Sex is human, so it cannot be scammed with objects. The fraudulent objective behind LGBTQ+ existence is to deceive heterosexuals into having sex with the same-sex. Physical fraud is the body. Its purpose is to replace a real penis with a plastic one. By doing so, it renders the sexual act fraudulent and ends human life at its source, since no human being can be conceived from it.

Because these practices have become normalized, the connection between sexual fraud, sexual dysfunction, and infertility largely goes unnoticed.

The ultimate goal of sexual fraud in female LGBTQ+ couples:

Fraudulent sex practices in youth:

Nothing appears abnormal, but in reality, it is a false sense of normalcy. Deceptive LGBTQ+ impulses keep people trapped in this practice for life, convinced that these feelings and attractions are normal in their bodies. As the years pass, menstrual cycles begin to stop. By their late 60, the first sign that the time to start a family has passed is that women who have stopped menstruating cannot have children. As fraudulent sexual practices continue, the risk of vaginal cancer rises with the use of plastic phalluses. This creates a plausible link to cancer or other vaginal diseases because plastic is not biologically compatible with vaginal tissue. The goal of this feeling is to make physical life end. This outcome remains hidden until old age, when it finally occurs.

Life faded away in old age:

We reach old age with no children. Menstruation has ceased. We wait for death. When death comes with old age, life ends, because after they die, there is no one left. No children remain alive because they were never born. Their impulses kept them from sex with men. The LGBTQ+ movement constitutes sexual fraud, because it leads to sexual activity between people of the same sex, which cannot produce children. Upon death, there are no offspring to carry on physical life, since no births occurred due to this fraudulent sexual practice. If LGBTQ+ people were to replace heterosexuals entirely, as this impulse drives them to do, physical life would collapse.

The ultimate goal of sexual fraud in male LGBTQ+ couples:

Fraudulent sex practices in youth:

For men, the process is slightly different. It differs because a man's body has no menstrual cycle to mark the end of his reproductive life. He can father children at any age with a woman who is still fertile. While the biology differs, the ultimate outcome is the same: death in old age. Over time, lifelong anal sex prevents births. Moreover, practicing this fraudulent form of anal sex exposes one to fecal-borne diseases, because the anus is not designed for sex; it is for eliminating waste. The result is that they persist in this practice. When they die of old age, no children carry on their life. Their lineage ends silently this way, with death in old age.

Life faded away in old age:

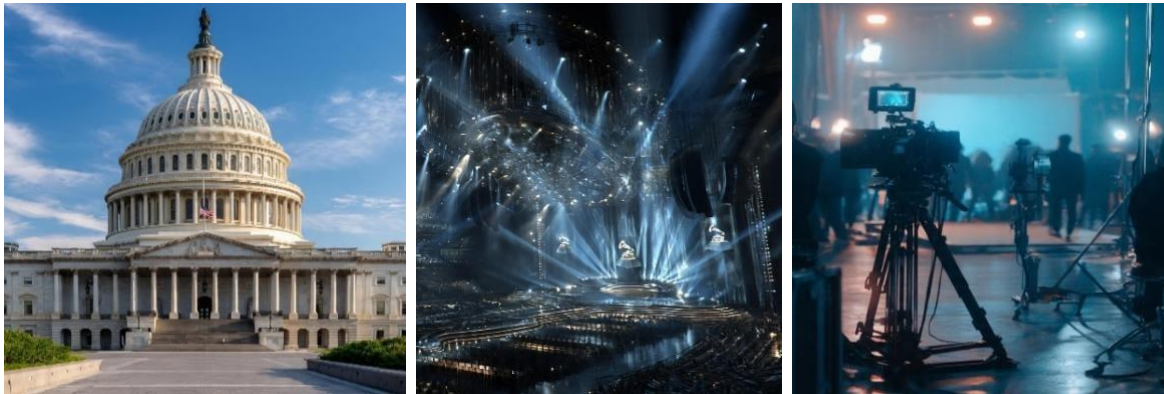

We grew old with no children, with anorectal diseases and HIV infection. Death in old age ends the bloodline. No children exist because none were conceived. Their orientation kept them from sex with women. The LGBTQ+ movement constitutes sexual fraud because it promotes same-sex sexual activity, which cannot produce children. At death, there are no offspring to continue the family line, since this fraudulent sexual practice yields no children. If LGBTQ+ people were to replace heterosexuals entirely, as their orientation drives them to do, human life would collapse.

LGBTQ+ activists cover up the truth. They brand it hate, homophobia, or bigotry. Then they push to get it banned so the public never learns it's sex fraud meant to prevent births.

Famous artists and governments:

Government officials, artists, and celebrities don't seem to acknowledge that same-sex relationships are non-procreative. Because all other behavior looks ordinary, that one aspect gets overlooked. The argument being made is that the ultimate effect of normalizing same-sex relationships is fewer births, since those relationships don't produce children. Celebrities with large fan bases want broad appeal and revenue, so they include LGBTQ+ representation in music videos to stay visible on social media.

As a result, some heterosexual people support the LGBTQ+ community as victims of the hidden truth. The claim is that artists who endorse this don't understand the goal: to discourage heterosexuality. By accepting payment to downplay heterosexual representation, they may actually shrink their fan base. When heterosexual teens are influenced by celebrity promotion, public displays of same-sex couples, or LGBTQ+ pornography, the argument goes, they might develop confusion about sexuality after a same-sex experience they were led into. The text calls LGBTQ+ a "misrepresentation" because it involves people pursuing same-sex partners. If governments do not grant LGBTQ+ people the rights of those born with disabilities, LGBTQ+ people will continue to believe that it is normal to have feelings in their bodies that contradict their biological sex. Music will always be heterosexual in nature. Putting musical art into LGBTQ+ spaces causes discomfort and reduces artists' income and drives fans away. The government is affected by the economic impact of low birth rates. LGBTQ+ people have sexual disabilities, even if they say otherwise. The evidence that same-sex relationships don't align with biological sex is clear.

Let's say it's the year 3063 and the goal of replacement is complete. Heterosexuality no longer exists. Only same-sex couples exist. People are born this way and live into old age. Life runs on a false normal. Their whole lives are built on fraudulent sex. They think it's normal. Women think they're men because they dress as men. Men think they're women because they transitioned or dress as women. That's the entire LGBTQ+ mindset: fraud. What happens when they get old? Life disappears. No one is born from same-sex relationships. People die of old age or accidents. That's where LGBTQ+ is headed: a world of only same-sex couples. Propaganda pulls in new victims through friendly outreach, curiosity, and protests for "equal rights" disguised as normal. People repeat: "Same-sex relationships have always existed and life hasn't ended." Here are two differences between past and present. First, past governments were regimes. If something made no sense, they rejected it. LGBTQ+ people have always existed. They're born from heterosexual sex but with fraudulent sexual feelings. In the past, families hid them out of shame. They knew their attraction made no sense. When they asked past governments for legal recognition, they were ignored or executed. Those governments knew this was sexual fraud. No births meant no people to govern. It would kill the economy. Second, today's governments are weak. They care about the economy, not logic. They give in to LGBTQ+ protests out of pity, not reason. LGBTQ+ activists now demand laws that protect their rights. They don't want the government to recognize them as people with sexual disorders. Legally, LGBTQ+ groups are trying to eliminate free speech and pressure public platforms to censor opposition. The real objective is to force heterosexuals to accept LGBTQ+ attraction as normal, using bans to cover up the truth: it is sexual fraud. LGBTQ+ communities look vulnerable today. People feel sorry for them. But their goal is simple: to eliminate heterosexuality. They manipulate politicians into normalizing LGBTQ+ behavior. Over time, they plan to create a homosexual world. If you support same-sex relationships on public pages, you're not banned. But if you speak on public pages about the truth that LGBTQ+ is a sexual fraud, you're banned with a shield label: it's discrimination, hate, etc. These methods effectively suppress the truth and allow same-sex populations to continue growing. So that the replacement continues to grow in ways that the government doesn't notice.

What happens when your children ask you:

1. “Mom, Dad, why do same-sex couples exist if you aren’t in one?”
2. “Mom, Dad, why wasn’t I born of the same sex?”
3. “Mom, Dad, why are there only two categories: heterosexual and same-sex?”
4. “What’s the difference between them?”
5. “Mom, Dad, can I try a same-sex relationship? I keep seeing advertisements and media campaigns that make it look appealing and normal.”
6. “Mom, Dad, why can’t I explore it if the government recognizes it as a normal way of life?”
7. “Mom, Dad, if I don’t accept these people, I’ll be labeled homophobic, intolerant, hateful, or discriminatory. I’m pressured to accept same-sex relationships and to believe they’re normal. What should I do?”

As a mother or father, you have no answers to these questions. The government has become complicit in this situation. To avoid confronting the truth, it hides behind accusations like “You’re homophobic,” “You’re intolerant,” or “That’s discrimination.” The truth is that this is sexual fraud, and it’s real. Concealing the truth markets fraud as entertainment, which conditions people to view this lifestyle as normal.
